

Workshop on Topological Phase Transitions and New Developments

5 to 8 June 2017

Nanyang Technological University, Singapore

In the past three decades, the discovery of topological phases has not only engendered great interest among researchers in condensed matter physics but it has also attract the interest of researchers working on quantum information, quantum materials and simulations, high energy physics and string theory. This workshop aims to bring together researchers working on various aspects of topological phases and topological phase transitions.
